

Digital Preservation in a Box

Butch Lazorchak, Library of Congress
Susan Manus, Library of Congress
Dever Powell, National Library of Medicine
Jane Zhang, Catholic University of America

GLOSSARIES
VIDEOS SLIDES
TOOLS REPORTS
TUTORIALS
AUDIO

Community Curation

Professional Development

Information and Library Professionals

“Smart” Box

Storage / Transformation / Augmentation

Curriculum Development

*K-12, Undergraduate,
LIS students*

The Box is a continually self-refreshing process

The Box is a modular toolkit of resources designed as a gentle introduction to the concepts of preserving digital information. The materials are geared towards two potential audiences: those who need a working knowledge of digital preservation concepts on the job (professional development); and those who teach or train others to preserve digital resources (curriculum development).

General Public

“Digital Preservation in a Box” is a major activity of the National Digital Stewardship Alliance Outreach Working Group. The NDSA is a collaboration of over 100 organizations from academia, science, government and professional associations working together to find solutions for many of today’s digital preservation challenges.

NDSA

For more information, visit:

http://www.digitalpreservation.gov/ndsaworking_groups/outreach.html